Editorial Correspondence

AUGUSTA July 21 1847

The Whig State Convention assembled at the Court House in this town this forenoon at ten o'clock agreeably to a call of the Whig Legislative Committee

The Convention was called to order by W Bradbury Esq and Judge Kingsbery, of Kingsbery, was chosen President, and Phineas Barnes and Jabez H Woodman Esquires, of New Gloucester, Secretaries

Committees were appointed on Credentials on Resolutions and on the subject of selecting Delegates to attend the Whig National Convention

In the afternoon the Convention by nearly a unanimous vote, nominated Hon DAVID BRONSON, of Augusta as their candidate for Governor and agreed to support him at the polls

The Committee on the subject of Delegates to attend the Whig National Convention reported that it was inexpedient to nominate Delegates at large at the present time and that when a National Convention shall be called, the Whig State Committee be requested to take measures for the choice of Delegates at large There was some discussion upon the subject of this report, but the result was carried by a large vote

There was an additional resolution passed in favor of the several districts selecting Delegates to attend a National Convention and to take action in favor of such a Convention

The proceedings were characterized by a good degree of unanimity—the resolutions reported by E E Hamlin were spirited and such as cannot fail to meet the approval of the Whigs of the State as they did the cordial adoption and enthusiastic support of the Convention

There is among the Whigs in the Legislature, and indeed among the Whigs generally assembled here a strong feeling in favor of the adoption of Gen TAYLOR as the Whig Candidate for President A convention of Whigs is called for this evening, to meet at the Court House, for the purpose of considering the subject The meeting will we have no doubt, be large and enthusiastic, and that Gen Taylor will be nominated or that equivalent resolutions will be passed This action may never as indeed the meeting is entirely distinct from that of the State Convention although many of the members of the Convention approve of and will take part in the meeting this evening

The weather, here, is excessively hot The hay makers are doing a fine business, and the prospect for abundant crops even of corn, is highly flattering, and farmers are cheerful and hopeful The Kennebec country appears now in all the glory and beauty of the hay season There is a finish about the farms in this vicinity which is highly attractive and justly entitles this region to be considered the Garden of the State

The Legislature is preparing for an adjournment in the course of some ten days, and now holds morning sessions and to day was zealously engaged in discussing the subject of Slavery We spent a short time in the House this morning, and heard several of the prominent debaters upon both sides on an amendment to the resolutions on Slavery, offered by Hon Luther Severance There was great want of courtesy and self respect on the part of two prominent Locofocos—Hon Hannibal Hamlin and Mr Foster of Pembroke The House, as a body, appeared much better than we expected to find it, but neither the House or the Senate would be suspected by our friend Fowler as being greatly marked for high intellectual powers

Letters from Rev. Mr. Hedge.

Sunday 10th

This morning we had a religious service, which I was asked to conduct The second cabin and steerage passengers were invited to attend, and such of the hands as could be spared I have often preached on land to smaller congregations and often to less attentive If the hearers were as much edified as the preacher, the exercise was not an unprofitable one — There seems to be a peculiar propriety in this observance of the Sunday on ship board, where circumstances will admit of it The Divine Presence, I think is nowhere more strongly realized than at sea The spirit of God seems at ways to move on the face of the deep And no class of men have more need of the aids, incentives and comforts of religion than the poor seamen, who—it may be said—if in this life only they have hope, are of all men most miserable Our singing did not turn out quite so well as might have been expected, for though we have plenty of singers on board, psalm tunes seem to be less familiar to them than secular airs For want of hymn books I deaconed out the hymn in the old New England style

I have discovered that the first mate is a townsman of mine, he was born in Cambridgeport, and in his school boy days lived in the family of Dr Follen

Wednesday, 15th

We have made 1500 miles which is one half the distance from Boston to Liverpool If the other half is performed as rapidly as the first has been, our voyage will have been accomplished within twenty days But now we are becalmed again and have made little or nothing for the last twelve hours I wonder what is the origin and meaning of the melancholy noise which sailors always make at their work That they should sing is natural enough, but why must the song have such a plaintive and dirge-like character?

There they go again One would think that the most painful operation in nature was precisely that of hauling the main top sail and ding-sail taut Heaven grant the measure may not prove so disastrous as their howling seems to prognosticate!

Our surgeon the other day drew a tooth for one of the passengers, under the operation of the newly discovered sulphuric ether He was so well satisfied with the success of the experiment that the next day he was mad to repeat it, and canvassed the whole ship's company for a subject I ventured to suggest that the Ether should be exhibited to Tommy the next time he was whipped but it was thought that the moral effect of the discipline would be impaired by such application

Our crazy Italian yesterday directed his suspicions against me I incurred them very innocently I merely asked him a question of Italian grammar—whether avevano was the same as avevano (they had) He soon after told Mr Champney, who talks French perfectly and has more communication with him than I have, that at first he did not think much of my question but when he came to ponder it, he was convinced that I had some hidden meaning and that I interred to some Italians in the hotel where he stopped, in Boston— he meant to say that they had his money When he next saw me on deck he came up to me much excited, and said with great emphasis, "Non avevano, non avevano!"

Thursday, 17th

Tell [illegible] that I never sit down to write without thinking of her The writing case which she gave me has been a great convenience I use it every day, and have never had anything of the kind so portable and compact My heart reproaches me that I did not thank her by letter before I left the country, but the hurry and complexity of my affairs on the eve of so long a journey made it extremely difficult to satisfy the most necessary demands on my time and thoughts and obliged me to leave many things undone which I had firmly proposed to do

I think all the arts are represented in this ship Besides our three painters in the after cabin, two of whom are also fine singers, there are two musicians in the second cabin, one performs on the violin, the other on the flute — The other evening we had them both on deck with their instruments, and the gentlemen got up a dance among themselves, the ladies not choosing to part equally One of these musicians, we discovered, is quite a character or as the slang phrase is a case He is an English man by birth, whose pompous manner belies his lowly station and affects importance in his own estimation He professes to talk all languages —Latin and Greek among the rest—and told us as he put up his instrument and left the deck "Gentlemen I am very happy to have served you, and if ever you want anything in my line, why, spanster in modo is my motto So then he goes by the name of spanster in modo among the passengers

Saturday, 19th

Fourteen days out and two thirds of the distance accomplished The captain has strong hopes of being in port next week, but yesterday we spoke a vessel, the British Queen bound for St John, that had been fifteen days out from Liverpool

Last evening we had theatricals The one of the passengers—the surgeon and two artists acted charades in which they travested some passages of last week Mr Gay had been somewhat seasick and the captain who had administered brandy and water, and nursed him with a more delicate care than fell to the lot of us A good deal of sport was made of the circumstance—the sickness not being dangerous or excessive—and in getting up a charade, one of the actors personated Mrs Caudwell borrowing her cloak and cap for the purpose and another mimicked to perfection his peculiarities The thing was good naturedly received by the parties concerned and afforded great amusement to the spectators

This morning at 3 o clock according to the Captain's reckoning we were, only 320 miles from Cape Clear, the most westerly point of Ireland This evening, if wind and weather serve, we expect to see land From Cape Clear to Liverpool is three hundred miles, according to we may look to be in port by Wednesday at farthest, unless we have head winds or a calm That will make seventeen or eighteen days from Boston—a remarkably short passage for this season of the year, when light winds for the most part prevail For the last forty eight hours we have been favored with a stiff breeze and have averaged more than nine miles the hour What eyes these sailors have! Just now the Captain called us on deck to see the steamer which left Liverpool on the nineteenth—the Caledonia I believe The Captain pronounces her to be at least fifteen miles distant. It is impossible for me to see her except though the spyglass and then very faintly and yet I am by no means near sighted

Yesterday we had another religious service The singing with some little preparation, went off better than last Sunday, but the wind which was then blowing at the rate of eleven knots, made such a racket in the ship that I was obliged to speak at the top of my voice and soon became quite hoarse We a felt thankful to be so near our journey's end and in such comfortable circumstances, and so far the moral improvement was genuine

A half past eight P M

The effects of our change of latitude are already perceptible in the lengthened daylight — an evening at this moment will not a candle agreeably to the Captain's prediction at one o clock, the coast of Ireland loom d into view and became ever clearer as we advanced— mountainous and sharply defined, height upon height, as depicted in the enclosed sketch which one of our fellow passengers was kind enough to copy for me from one of his own In the course of the afternoon we were hailed by Cork pilots in their picturesque boats with red sails, which danced in the rolling sea after a fashion that made me giddy to look upon, now swallowed up in the trough of the sea and now again balancing on the crest of the billow These Corkonians with a strong brogue offered their services, thinking perhaps that we might be another edition of the Jamestown round for their port The afternoon was showery and toward evening there sprung up on the eastern sky the most perfect rainbow I ever beheld One foot rested on Ireland, the other on the sea and the reflection in the water, almost as luminous as the prototype, reached from the horizon to the ship I immediately there flashed through my mind these verses

"Erin the smile and the tear in thine eye"
"Beams like the rainbow that hangs in thy sky"

Erin often hangs such rainbows in her sky, I can well appreciate the fitness of the image — But alas too, I thought

"Erin, thy languish smile ne'er shall increase"
"Erin, thy falling tear never shall cease."

To my regret we shall pass Cork in the night

The surgeon, Dr Parks, related to me the other day a conversation which he overheard, and which amused him very much, between the Captain and the first Mate The mate comes to the Captain's stateroom about two o clock in the morning and waking him up, says, there have been a good many squalls since twelve o clock Capt What kind of squalls are they? Mate Well sir they are nasty squalls 'Are they? are they?' says the Capt Well if they are nasty squalls I will get up

At this moment Mr Champney who gave me this sketch of Ireland, is singing,

'We are sailing on the sea, Mary,

in a style which seems to me with my poor knowledge of music, not inferior to Dumstaff I must break off for I cannot close but listen So good night!

TUESDAY, the 22nd

The coast of Ireland still continues in sight, changing every moment its particular features, but presenting the same general outline, mountainous and abrupt will here and there a village crowning the slope of some less rugged hill or nestling in some quiet nook of a valley and occasional a patch of verdure but scarcely enough of that as yet to justify the application of Green Erin We have left the Waterford light and are now coming to the Wicklow hills and the hill of Howth, whereby I am reminded of the old doggerel

'The Wicklow hills are my head
And as the hill of Howth I'm warm,
For there's a hill which I can't see
'Tis higher than the hill of Howth &c &c

We shall hope to be in Liverpool tomorrow although the wind is very light Well I should not have believed it possible to cross the ocean with so little discomfort We were only sixteen days out of sight of land in fact less than that, and every day I have taken my usual cold bath, as at home, every day I have dined sumptuously —fresh provisions, green vegetables and ice water &c &c &c

Wednesday the 23rd

This morning at 8 o'clock we passed Holyhead on the English coast We shall not reach Liverpool this evening, but with the breeze which has just sprung up, expect to be there early in the morning Some of the scenery is very striking We are now just off the Welsh Coast (Snowdon and Glyderhmon—venerable names and scarcely less classical than Pindus and Parnassus—let their august heads in the back ground)

Thursday the 24th at 8 o'clock in Liverpool

We have just arrived having been towed up by a steamer for he has twenty five miles The weather is drizzling and cold real damp my conception of the English climate Otherwise the impression made by the aspect and situation of Liverpool is very much the same as that of New York We have not yet set foot on the shore, and two I take a long time to get through with the Custom House, still I hope to be able to take the cars for Birmingham at five o'clock From there I think I shall go to Stratford on Avon and perhaps to Kenilworth and then proceed directly to London I think I shall leave this letter in Liverpool to go by the next Cunard steamer and perhaps I may write again from London in time for the same

Legislature of Maine.

In the Senate—

Mr Thurston from the committee of inquiry, reported that the Legislature will be able to hold two sessions a day after Thursday next, and can adjourn on Monday Aug 2, at 7 A M Accepted

Bill to incorporate the Moosehead Lake Steam Navigation Co was taken up

Mr. Burseley's motion to reconsider the vote striking out the original exclusive privilege, was carried, yeas 20 nays 5

Mr. Ayer then moved to amend by striking out the provision making it a penal offence for other persons to run a steamboat on the lake, and by providing that the Legislature may revoke the rights to be granted by the company, and also may authorize any other company to navigate the lake by steam The amendments were adopted, and the bill passed to be engrossed

Report of the Judiciary Committee that the bill to incorporate the Bangor and Pushaw Water Co ought not to pass came from the House indefinitely postponed Laid on the table, on motion of Mr Knowlton Also the vote of the House indefinitely postponing the report of leave to withdraw on petition of John H Pillsbury et als in aid of the above object

The Mexican War resolves were taken up

Mr Baker moved to take the vote separately on the resolves Agreed to

On Motion of Mr Ayer, the resolves were laid on the table

The resolve authorizing a settlement for stumpage out of the St John and Aroostook waters was taken up The House amendments, fixing a minimum price for the stumpage was non-concurred, 14 to 9

Mr Ayer moved to insert the names of Thomas Chadwick of Portland, and Tristram Jordan of Topsham, as the persons to make the settlement in conjunction with the Land Agent instead of such persons as the Governor and Council may appoint

The amendment was adopted Yeas 19, nays 7

The resolve then passed to be engrossed

Passed to be enrossed—Resolve for the repair of the Fish River road—of the Lexington and Dead River road—to incorporate the Lewiston Falls Bank—resolve correcting the valuation of Newfield and Shapleigh—for an agent to settle claims upon the Disputed Territory fund—for a bounty on agricultural productions of the Passamaquoddy Indians—resolve for the purchase of additional copies of Williamson's History of Maine

Finally passed—bill to authorize a wharf in Indian-waters in Thomaston—to establish the Brickfield Branch Railroad Co

In the House—

Mr Paine of Bangor, called up the report on the bill to incorporate the Bangor and Pushaw Canal Co the dam may not pass, and moved that it be recommitted with instructions to report the bill in a new draft Mr Paine said there was an error in the instructions before, which occasioned the report which was made

Mr Hamlin of Hampden said the Judiciary Committee had examined the subject in all its bearings, and come to the conclusion that the bill ought not to pass

Mr Babcock of Orono, said there was no immediate public necessity for the city of Bangor to be supplied with fresh water from Pushaw Pond This is a mere speculation It will cost $300,000

Mr Paine said all that was asked is that an eight inch pipe may be inserted in Pushaw Pond and carry water to Bangor The alarm at this project is perfectly puerile and uncalled for

The motion to recommit was lost, 28 to 50, and the report was indefinitely postponed

Mr Parker of Golden Ridge called up the resolves concerning the extension of slavery in newly acquired territory, he question being on passing the first three resolves

On motion of Mr Foster, the vote was ordered to be taken separately

The first resolution was passed—yeas 122, nay 1, (Mr Damon)

Mr Woods of Gardiner, moved to amend by adding at the end of the second resolve, "or the admission of any territory into the Union where slavery exists"

Mr Hamlin contended that it is not in order to amend, after the House has commenced voting

The Speaker decided it to be in order

On motion of Mr Severance, the yeas and nays were ordered on the amendment

The amendment was adopt by the following vote —Yeas 62, nays 59

Mr Hamlin of Hampden moved that the resolutions be indefinitely postponed

Mr Foster advocated the motion

Mr Otis moved the yeas and nays, and they were ordered

Mr Hamlin said he was desirous of responding to the Governor's message, but our political opponents have thrust upon us a sentiment which we disapprove It shows that there is no honesty in their professions of willingness to support the Governor's sentiments

Mr Foster gloried in this hour; it was the proudest hour of his life, the subject had assumed a shape which suited him

Mr Chadwick said he could hardly understand the position of gentlemen—he was in the fog He had supposed the subject under discussion was the extension of slavery He had deemed a decided and unanimous expression on the subject He had no political views nor wishes on the subject He considered the amendment a perfectly proper one

Mr Woods said he had offered the amendment without consultation with any other person

Mr Severance said he was surprised at the position of the gentleman from Hampden, but that of the gentleman from Penobscot was perfectly consistent, for his object is to defeat the resolutions the amendment probably grew out of the gentleman's position that the resolutions ought to be in such a shape as to allow the admission of Cuba into the Union This ground having been taken it was necessary to put the resolutions in such a shape as to preclude such a construction Mr S contended that the Whigs and Democrats of the North should unite in a declaration of their sentiments on the subject of the extension of slavery

Before taking the question the House adjourned

The Railroad Committee reported that the petition of R K J Porter et als for a railroad from the Androscoggin and Kennebec Railroad to North Anson, be referred to the next Legislature Accepted

The vote passing to be engrossed the resolve for a commission to settle the claims for stumpage out on the St John, &c and non concurring the House amendment, were reconsidered, the resolve further amended on motion of Mr Hayes and passed to be engrossed

Bill to exempt Islesboro, Vinalhaven and North Haven from the operation of the Town Court law was taken up

Read once—Bill to incorporate the Bangor and Piscataquis Canal and Railroad Co (extending the charter of the present Co)—the Moosehead Lake Railway Co—to establish the Bangor and Orono Railroad Co—in relation to reserved lots in unincorporated townships

In the House—

The second resolve respecting slavery in newly acquired territory, as amended on motion of Mr Woods of Gardiner pending at the last adjournment came on in course Mr Woods, for the purpose of union and conciliation moved a reconsideration of the vote on his amendment which was agreed to the resolve was then passed yeas 124 nays Messrs Lermond Young Damon, Ruggles Piperi Lamson, Fuller and Weed

The vote was then taken on the third resolution and it was passed yeas, 125 nays Messrs Young Damon S C Foster, Ruggles Fuller, and Lamson

'Resolved, That the sentiment of this State is proof and, sincere and almost universal, that the influence of slavery upon productive energy is like the blight of mildew, that it is a moral, political and social evil, that it does violence to the rights of man as a thinking, responsible and responsible being Influenced by such considerations, this State will oppose the introduction of slavery into any free territory'

Mr Hamlin of Hampden, opposed the amendment as substantially the same as the second resolution

Mr Foster replied

The amendment was rejected yeas 25—nays 111

Mr Severance moved to amend by adding the following additional resolve

'Resolved, That we are opposed to the acquisition of any territory in which slavery may exist at the time it is acquired unless with an express stipulation for its abolition and future exclusion, as provided in the ordinance of 1787'

Mr Severance said there is a design at the South to annex the island of Cuba to the United States A resolution was offered in the United States Senate last session by Mr Yulee of Florida, looking towards the acquisition of Cuba — Mr Sevarance contended that we are called upon by existing circumstances to express an opinion adverse to this and similar projects

Mr Hamlin of Hampden was sorry the gentleman from Augusta had offered his amendment—he considered it unfair Mr H was willing to meet the question of annexing Cuba at a proper time, he would go for that annexation to day with proper conditions It would not extend the area of slavery or increase the number of slaves We have our molasses, sugar, &c from Cuba, and these are strong reasons why it should belong to this country

Mr Scammon moved to amend so as to strike out the words 'be instructed, so as merely to request both Senators and Representatives — Negatived, 56 to 59

Mr Foster of Pembroke moved to strike out all after the word "Resolved," and insert, in substance, that when the question becomes a practical one, we have full confidence that the wisdom and patriotism of our government will lead them to such action as may be consistent with the preservation of the Union and of kindred feelings and harmony between the South and the North (Some debate took place on this amendment

Mr Jones of Eastport, asked in mercy for the gentleman from Pembroke he hoped the question on his amendment would be taken forthwith, for the more the gentleman said, the worse he made his own case

Mr Foster asked leave to reply to the gentleman from Eastport, and said that he (Mr F) was a true Democrat and a friend to his country, when the gentleman from Eastport was and mere babe nursing in his mother's arms

Mr Jones said he was extremely sorry that the principles of the gentleman from Pembroke had been so materially changed since his (Mr J's) childhood

The amendment was rejected without a count

The fifth resolve was passed, 75 to 35

The sixth was passed, 102 to 5

So the resolutions were all adopted

Mr Parker of Golden Ridge, by leave, introduced a resolve granting to the plantation of Golden Ridge its proportion of school money for 1847 The Speaker decided that it came under the 40 day rule

The resolve was advocated by Messrs Newell of Penobscot Foster of the Forks, and then refused a passage, yeas 78, nays 43 not two thirds

Finally passed—bills to incorporate Monson Academy—Litchfield Liberal Institute—Munjoy Company—resolve correcting the valuation of Newfield and Shapleigh

Passed to be engrossed—bill authorizing Kennebec Log Driving Company to construct a dam at the foot of Indian Pond

Mr Thomas of Thomaston, by leave, introduced a bill to extend the charter of the Thomaston Bridge Company, which was laid on the table under the rule

The House concurred in the amendments of the Senate to the resolve providing for an equitable settlement with those who have purchased stumpage on the St John

Bill to change the names of certain persons was amended, on motion of Mr Flanders by allowing a young man in Jackson, who does not know his proper name, but is commonly called Eben Only, to take the name of Charles Jackson Passed to be engrossed

Bill to incorporate Moosehead Lake Steam Navigation Company, was re-committed, on motion of Mr Blanchard of Blanchard

Report of the joint committee that the two houses can commence holding two sessions a day on Thursday, and that the Legislature can adjourn on the 2d day of August, was accepted in concurrence
